Payment card industry (PCI) compliance

Last modified on 09/17/2026 10:15 am EDT

Payment card industry (PCI) compliance is a form of compliance that companies who accept payment cards (such as credit cards and debit cards) should maintain.

KnowledgeOwl maintains PCI-A compliance.

This level of compliance is appropriate for companies who don't directly touch payment card data. In our case, we use third-party tools to handle all payment data for us so that it never touches our servers and impossible for our team to retrieve.

If your organization needs more details on our PCI-A compliance, you can contact us to request a copy of our PCI-A compliance Self-Assessment Questionnaire.

We are also currently pursuing a SOC 2 audit. Refer to SOC 2 for our current status.

Copyright © 2015 – 2025 Silly Moose, LLC. All rights reserved.
Powered by KnowledgeOwl knowledge base software.