

☒ Nat'l Elephant Appreciation Day bugfixes

Elephants are definitely among my favorite animals for a bunch of reasons. Since I was a kid, I've been obsessed with their feet. Elephants are all just so giant and sweet, and you can't help but love them!

To celebrate National Elephant Appreciation Day, we have a couple of bugfixes for you. Nothing quite as massive as an elephant, but hopefully just as memorable.

Widget authentication fixes

We fixed an issue where the "Open in full site" link wasn't appearing in OAuth-authenticated widgets if third-party cookies were disabled in certain browsers. This happened because the widget couldn't set cookies in the browser, which meant users would need to re-authenticate when opening the full-size version of a restricted knowledge base. We've now added an option to override this behavior and always display the "Open in full site" link, even when cookies cannot be set.

Glossary search results now use display titles

We fixed a bug where glossary terms in search results were showing the internal glossary term instead of the display title. Search results will now correctly show the display title when one has been set, matching the behavior on the actual glossary page. So if you want to include Babar's original name Béb      phant in your glossary, it will display properly.
